LATEST NEWS FROM EUROPE.

WASHINGTON, April 9.

It was a quarter past two o'clock by the time

the reading of the Civil Rights bill and the vote message was completed.

Mr. Wilson of Iowa, after a few remarks, demanded the previous question.

Mr. Eldridge, of Wis., moved for a call of the House. The call was voted, the opposition only voting in the negative.

A motion was made in the House by Mr. Lobbion to lay the Civil Rights bill on the table, and it was negatived by 37 to 121.

Mr. Eldridge and Mr. Fink, on the opposition, severally made motions to adjourn, which were voted down.

Mr. Eldridge then announced a resolution of disclaimer, saying that his friends had left the House, being convinced that it was the determination to pass the bill over the veto of the President by the operation of the gag rule, affording to the demand for the previous question, which had already been sustained.

NEW YORK, April 9.

The Civil Rights bill passed the House.

NEW YORK, April 9.

The Tribune's Washington special says: Alexander H. Stephens continues to receive many calls from those who have been admirers of his course for the last five years, and those holding high positions, who are now disposed to make a hero of him. He has become very much disheartened as to an early admission into the Senate and says he shall go back on Wednesday.

He has not the slightest doubt but that he will have a seat given him in the Senate.

He estimates the coming election of the South at three million votes.

It is generally expected that the President will in a few days release Jeff Davis and Clement C.

Clay on parole. There is no probability of their ever being tried for their participation in the conspiracy by which the President was murdered.

The most noticeable visitor was the head Calif of the Six and Foxes, a fine specimen of the Indians and in full costume, on business with the President.

A. Mr. O'Connor had received Panama, en route from the Barbadoes gold mines, with one hundred pounds weight in gold, the result of six months' personal labor, with most primitive instrumentation. He comes to New York to obtain machinery.

No news of interest from Central America.

XXXIXth Congress—First Session.

HOUSE—April 9.

The first business in order was the call of Committees for reports to be placed on the calendar.

There was no report made under the call.

The next business in order was the resolution introduced by Mr. Davis, of Mass., on the 10th of January, and since lying over under the rule, decided that this House cherish the most entire confidence in the patriotism and ability of the President of the United States and in his desire to restore the Union on a basis of prosperity and peace, and that the co-operation of this House is pledged to him in support of the general policy of reconstruction inaugurated by him, in the matters authorized by the Constitution and consistent with the security of republican institutions on which Mr. Raymond was entitled to the floor.

Mr. Raymond supposed it would meet the scruples of the House, as it certainly would, to postpone the consideration of the resolution for the present. He would therefore move to postpone it till two weeks from to-day. The motion to postpone was agreed to.

The next business in order being the call of Committees for resolutions, Mr. Boutwell offered the following:

Whereas, The President of the United States did,

on the 3d day of May, 1865, by proclamation, declared and make known, that it did then appear from evidence in the Bureau of Military Justice, that the atrocious murder of the late President

Abraham Lincoln, and the attempted assassination of Hon. W. H. Seward, Secretary of State,

The Banks.

The First National Bank reopened its doors yesterday. The public confidence in the abundance of its resources was not impaired by its suspension, and the inconvenience resulting from its temporary disability, seemed to be quite forgotten amid the general gratification at its resumption of business. There was no run upon the bank by depositors, and we learn that the deposits for the day were in excess of the disbursements. There was a general feeling of relief and gratification. All branches of trade had a more enlivening appearance than for several months past, and all classes of business men accepted it as a favorable augury for the future.

It is useless to say, however, that consider-able depression exists among the depositors of the Petroleum Bank. We are called upon every day for information concerning it, but are totally unable to satisfy the public in that respect. There are scores of men in the community whose every dollar was deposited in its vaults. During the first excitement and confusion following the suspension, it was scarcely to be expected that any accurate statement would be made of its affairs. But ten days have elapsed and the same reticence prevails. The public have waited patiently, hopefully, expectantly, but without avail. The same inexplicable silence, mystery and dumb-show continues. This suspense is more aggravating and intolerable to those whose means are locked up by the failure, than a full knowledge of a total loss. We are assured that they wish to know the truth, the whole truth; to know the worst, and to provide for it. Will Mr. Chasler Madison respond?

Third Chapter of the Chronicle.

1. So the chamberlains went in and said before the king of the Titusvilles, and the king was well pleased, for the chamberlains did that which was right in the sight of the king. And moreover the king waxed fat, and gathered great riches from the people.

2. Now the king being finally seated on his throne sought out divers ways to extend his kingdom, calling into his presence many great men from all parts of the earth. And they held council together, and the king said, Go to, now will I build great cities, and will endow the inhabitants thereof with great riches, and will build high-ways and by-ways, and will make my name great amongst the nations.

3. So the king showed them all these things, and the wise men said, Great is king Rino, and greatly to be praised; and they fell down and worshipped him.

4. And it came to pass that the king commanded his servants to make ready his chariot, for he said to himself, now will I show these people the great matters I have known of.

5. So the king, with the mighty men from the East, and the West, and the North, and the South, together with his chariots and the horsemen thereof, went forth an exceeding great multitude.

6. And it came to pass as they journeyed towards the promised land, they came unto a goodly country, called "More-Rye," which being interpreted signified that the prince of the place had built there a great palace wherewith to entertain strangers, and he was wont to give unto them a pleasant beverage distilled from rye.

7. And the beverage was so captivating to the taste that all who drank thereof were exceedingly desirous to obtain more of it, and would call upon the prince of the palace for "More-Rye."

8. So the king of Rino and the multitude with him tarried at the palace of More-Rye.

9. And the prince of More-Rye made unto them a great feast, and they eat and they drank of the choice products of the land from vessels of crystal and vessels of silver, and the wise men said, Behold, we have not seen the like of this, not in Greece.

10. Now it was commanded by the king that the chronicles of the great feast at the palace of More-Rye should be recorded in letters of gold and placed among the archives of the Empire.

11. And it came to pass that the king summoned from afar all the chief acrites, who were instructed to make record in accordance with his commandment.

Letter from Pittsle City.

PRINCETON, April 5.

Editor Morning Herald:

There are very few men who cannot say that sometime in their lives they have considered themselves fortunate. Your humble scribbler is to-day in that "awful fix." I have dined at the "Chase House," and I tell you it's a good thing and I know it; very, Messrs. Pond and Alden are good fellows and can keep a hotel. The fine spring weather of yesterday and this afternoon has made our streets look bright and more like our by-gone palmy days? I am neither a "prophet" or the son of a "prophet," but feel safe in risking my reputation as a reader of the "signs of the times," by expressing my expectation of very bright times in the next four weeks.

Oil has taken an upward turn. Sales (small ones) to-day at $3.75, $4 and $4.25 are asked on large lots by men able to hold. A prominent dealer here, a man of good judgment, says of the prospects of Pittsle during the next summer: "I have great hopes of us large a trade as we ever saw."

A correspondent at West Hickory reports that $3.75 to $4 was paid for illuminating oil there on yesterday. Well No. 2, lease 18, Holmden field, adjoining the "Old Grant," was pumped yesterday and produced seventy-five to eighty barrels of fine oil, and is improving fast. Her owners are jubilant, and disinterested parties believe that she is destined to prove one of our largest wells.

The Clark well, Copeland reserve, for some time dry, was resuscitated last week and is now doing fifty barrels of oil. Well No. 8, same lease, is tubed and ready for testing. When a result is reached, it, as well as other items of interest to your readers, will be reported by Pittsle, Jr.

The Spring Bonnets.—A letter from Paris reports that a great increase has taken place in the export of military since the beginning of the year, and the number of hands previously employed in its preparation is being now found insufficient, they are recruited from other quarters, so that there can be no unemployed hands. A similar remark of the activity of the milliners applies to New York. The new fashion is queer, and they themselves, which appear with the Easter festival, are "not much to speak of," being as small and light as the former. You can hence form your own conclusions as to the question of economy. I know Prof. Southbury well, and there can be no deception in regard to the genuineness of these facts and experiments.

The result of the experiment, as I took it down, was as follows:

City Coal Gas.—Under pressure of five-tenths barrels to the inch, and consumption of two feet to the hour, gave an illuminating power of two and three-tenths candles.

Oranges and Lemons.—For sale cheap. Ad. Mrs. M. Swanson, 202, Titusville.

D. C. Clark receiving nice Peachblossom and Pine Potatos almost every day, and can supply customers with any quantity, from a pack to a car-load.

E. M. Cole.—Book Binder and Blank Book Manufacturer, 22 corner State and Fifth streets, Pittsle.

Every description of Ruling and Binding promptly attended to.

We have got up a quantity of Warranty and Quit Claim Deeds, Mortgages, Powers of Attorney, Tenant Leases, Oil Leases, and Assignments, right Notes, and many other blank forms of legal papers. Apply to this office.

Hay and Grain.—In quantities to suit, delivered free.

The test was made by Colonel E. C. Civil Engineer, in presence of a party of gentlemen, including a Committee from Chicago, and the result was the immediate closing of a contract by which the light is to be speedily introduced into that city, they are cost heavily, and as "fashion" dictates they are to be worn, there is no more to be paid than a dollar. Prices range from twenty-five to forty and fifty dollars, and all the fashionable milliners are driven with work.

Down the Creek.—A writer in Beadle's Monthly has a very readable article on the "Oil Wells of Pennsylvania," in the course of which he takes the following romantic view of "down the creek."

Having enjoyed a rapile, the ride from Titusville is interesting and romantic along Beaufort's river, twining through ravines under the shade of large trees, mountains on both sides, covered with hemlock, and large, separated sandstone, so indicative of oil, scattering the path, to W. C. Ulver, the projector of the plan, who has a right had been sold under this patent and a company has been formed for introducing the light into Chicago. Engineers are now engaged in putting up the works. Contracts are also made with parties in Rochester, Philadelphia and Baltimore, and committees are now here examining the light for Boston, Lowell and other towns in Massachusetts. But all this must take time, and more especially as they must encounter immediately the hostility of the old gas monopolies, which occupy the ground.

What is wanted now is an immediate illustration on a practical scale of the merits and power of this light. Newly erected gas works where the Petroleum gas may be at once applied is the desideratum. If Mr. O'Riley finds such at Titusville, he is informed, and can secure the operation of your citizens in securing a trial, both they and you, and all oilmen will have occasion speedily to rejoice in the great advancement of Petroleum interests, secured by the bright radiance of the new light.

I ought to add that I have not a dollar interest (much to my regret) in the Gas Light Company, and the firm will be known as B. F. H. Lynn & Co. The editor says "his capital and qualifications will add materially to the success of the establishment, and relieve the senior partner of many responsibilities to which time of trial he has heretofore prevented him from doing full justice."

Side-Walk Obstructions.—Mr. Wheeler, the new Street Commissioner, entered upon his duties yesterday morning, and commenced the removal of obstructions on the sidewalks. The business streets are nearly half the time barricaded by the display of goods in front of stores, and pyramids of boxes and barrels.

A Dead Lock.—The McElroy Apartments say,

The newly elected Borough authorities of Oil City are unable to get possession of the official records pertaining to the accounts of the Borough. They are in possession of the ex-Burgess, who refuses to give them up. The new board of officers are unable to tell from the records in their possession whether the city ever owned a hundred thousand dollars.

A Fair Report.—Mr. Pain, of the Cory Telegraph, remarked the other day that his Eric contemporaries were afflicted to a great extent with "fair-on-the-brain," whereas the Ericans were more of a strictly business character. Mr. N. has done more for Pittsle interests with his pen than any other man in the country.

Frank McKenna, one of the victims of the fire disaster, is on the恢复 of the Morning Herald. The sum he gave has been paid to his legal expenses, and is making an effort to close out the Chase stock the present week.

Prices waiting to buy, by the lot or otherwise, will do well to attend.

There will be a regular meeting of the Com-

"He Art, Alfred, Only, However,"

For the Morning Herald.

A man made a speech, and he said, "I am Alfred, and I am the author of 'The Titusville'."

And from that in Japan time,

There fragments of a song,

And a speech of a man,
